Going Down - Jeff Beck - L12

Jeff Beck is one of England's finest guitarists with an extraordinary style of playing that is totally unique. Now days Jeff uses mainly his fingers to pick with and a whole lot of natural harmonics and whammy bar but before the mid 1980's he was more of a plectrum user. This is an early Beck track that here we have tabbed out in E.

```
E|-----|
B|-----|
G|-----7-7-----|
D|----5-----6-6-----| Hold each of the last chords for a count of 4.
A|-5-7--7--7-5-----7-7-----|
E|7-----5-3-0-----|
```

```
E|-----|
B|-----|
G|-----7-7-----|
D|----5-7(>9)-----6-6-----|
A|-5-7-----7-5-----7-7-----|
E|7-----5-3-0-----|
```

```
E|-----|
B|8-----|
G|7-----7-7-----| Hold the first chord for a count of 4
D|6-----6-6-----|
A|7-7-5-----7-7-----|
E|-----5-3-0-----|
```

Now work this lick out using the first and 5th pentatonic on the around the 12th fret.

Homework:

We have tabbed this song out in the key of E, however we have heard Jeff play it in a number of different keys including B, C# and G. Using mainly the 1st and 5th pentatonic shapes transpose this song into these keys.
